IMPLICITY

15 Nov 2019 – 15 Jan 2020 • Exhibition of nature photographs by Ian Brown

Blue Mountains fine art nature photographer, Ian Brown, returns to the Garden with his latest collection of works. This exhibition blends the bold and subtle, to the simplicity of nature with the mysterious. Closely observed in the making, the photographs reward contemplation. The subject may not be immediately obvious, but it is always something unusual found in nature and faithfully portrayed: events, phenomena, ephemera, details, rhythms, the familiar rendered unfamiliar, and strangeness celebrated.

Ian Brown is a fine art nature photographer based in the Blue Mountains. His work has appeared in numerous books, calendars, diaries, magazines and exhibitions and has supported many environmental campaigns. He has been a finalist five times in the prestigious Australian Geographic ANZANG nature photography competition. Ian is a regular exhibitor at the Blue Mountains Botanic Garden due to public demand.
